Foreword

The Duncan Hunter National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2009 requires the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA or the Academy) to conduct a survey on sexual harassment and sexual assault every other year. The results of the survey administered by the U.S. Department of Defense's Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC) to a partial contingent¹ of Midshipmen in April and August of 2014 reveal that during the 2013-2014 Academic Year, a weighted estimate of 19 women (plus or minus 5) and a weighted estimate of 16 men (plus or minus 9) were sexually assaulted and an estimated 62 percent of women and 12 percent of men experienced sexual harassment. The Academy had four sexual assaults reported to Academy officials, which, while more than were reported in previous years, still requires significant improvement.

The Academy also conducted a Faculty and Staff Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault Survey, the first such survey given since 2010. There were no reported sexual assaults, but three faculty and staff members revealed that they had been victims of sexual harassment. One faculty or staff member said that he or she reported the sexual harassment to the Equal Employment Opportunity office, but the office has no record of such a report being made.

These results are unsatisfactory to me, to the leadership of the Academy, and the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT). We will take every necessary measure to put a stop to this egregious behavior and to ensure that Midshipmen have a safe and supportive environment on campus and during their Sea Year training.

Appendix C details the comprehensive Plan of Action the Academy has launched to prevent and respond to sexual assault and sexual harassment. In 2014, the Academy hired a new Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator (SARC) to replace the previous SARC who resigned earlier in the year. In addition, the Academy has established an oversight framework for its Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program (SAPR), which includes the following: (1) goals by which the Academy's progress can be assessed; (2) continuing education requirements for the SARC position; (3) performance metrics for the SAPR program and its sexual harassment prevention activities; (4) a plan with assigned responsibilities and deadlines by which annual reports and action plans on sexual assault and harassment are delivered to Congress; (5) standard operating procedures related to the SARC's responsibilities and the execution of the program; and (6) a systematic recordkeeping system for sexual assault and sexual harassment incidents, reports, and related training.

We also continue to upgrade our safety and security systems. The campus 24/7 Command and Control Center was fully operational in January 2014 and an electronics access system for the barracks was activated in May 2014. Further upgrades are planned throughout Fiscal Years 2015 and 2016, including the establishment of a Public Safety Local Area Network, increased video surveillance, installation of additional callboxes, and implementation of a campus entry point screening system.

In addition, DOT has delegated oversight responsibility for USMMA's SAPR program to the Maritime Administration (MARAD) who clarified lines of reporting and defined the position requirements for the SARC. DOT and MARAD continue to involve their senior leaders involved in the execution of the Academy's SAPR program.

DMDC will begin to conduct Midshipmen Focus Group sessions in the coming weeks. We will use the focus group results to corroborate the SAGR Survey data and to obtain more specificity on Midshipmen perceptions of the program. The 2014 SAGR Survey and 2015 focus group sessions results taken together will be useful in guiding us on additional steps we must take to fully implement an effective "Zero-Tolerance" Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program at the Academy.

The American people entrust the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy with developing some of America's best young men and women into leaders of exemplary character who proudly serve as officers in the U.S. Merchant Marine and our Armed Forces. DOT, MARAD, and the Academy are committed to providing Midshipmen with an environment free of sexual harassment and sexual assault, living quarters that are safe and secure, a faculty and staff who are worthy of trust and respect, and an institution of higher education that honors diversity and allows every member of the Regiment of Midshipmen to live up to his or her full potential.

Executive Summary

The Duncan Hunter National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2009 (P.L. 110-417), requires the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA or Academy) to prescribe a policy and conduct an assessment during each Academic Year² to determine the effectiveness of its policies, training and procedures with respect to sexual harassment and sexual assault prevention. For each Academic Year beginning in an odd-numbered year, the Academy also must administer a survey.

Four official reports of sexual assault were made to the Academy in the 2013-2014 Academic Year. The same number of assaults was reported in the previous academic year. No assaults were reported in the two years before that, even though the Midshipmen survey for those years indicates that sexual assaults and harassment were about as prevalent then as in the most recent Academic Year. The Academy appears to be gaining ground in earning the trust of the Midshipmen to fairly consider and investigate these incidents. But the number of incidents officially reported to the Academy is still only a fraction of all the incidents of harassment and assaults that occurred, based on the information the Midshipmen provided in DMDC's anonymous survey. As the Plan of Action in Appendix C shows, the Academy leadership is continuing to work on establishing an environment in which Midshipmen feel safe reporting incidents, as an important step towards reducing and eliminating assaults and harassment.

Nonetheless, these preliminary results are still highly disturbing. The Midshipmen at the Academy deserve an environment that is entirely free of sexual harassment and sexual assault. But it is clear both from the four official reports of sexual assault and the survey results outlined below that these behaviors continue to occur at the Academy. It is the responsibility of the Academy leadership, the Maritime Administration, and the U.S. Department of Transportation to address this culture at the Academy and effect meaningful change that results in a climate where there is zero tolerance for these behaviors. DOT and MARAD will continue to involve senior leaders in the execution of the Academy's SAPR program, and this survey provides the data points to be used to tailor training effort to affect this change on campus.

As in the 2011-2012 Academic Year, the Academy contracted with the U.S. Department of Defense's Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC) to administer its confidential Service Academy Gender Relations sexual assault and sexual harassment survey (SAGR Survey).³ The advantage of this approach was threefold: (1) it enabled the Academy to use an unbiased outside resource to administer a standardized survey tailored to students attending service academies, (2) it provided professional compilation and analysis of results, and (3) it gave the Academy the ability to compare results with other Federal service academies.

There are, however, some aspects of the SAGR Survey that should be considered when interpreting statistical inferences about the Academy's Midshipman population. For instance, the Survey extrapolates the responses of actual survey takers to non-survey takers using a weighting formula.⁴ This means that the Survey provides estimated percentages of the overall population rather than actual numbers of Midshipmen. Like any survey, each estimate has some margin of error. Some estimates of groups of Midshipmen within the Survey have such large margins of error that an estimate cannot even be reported. Rather than provide the margins of error for every percentage in this Report, however, the convention will be to use the word “estimated” or “about” to remind the reader that actual results may vary from the numbers reported. In addition this Report was written based on partial raw data and will be updated via an amended Report once the full complement of surveys has been analyzed; the amended Report may contain more details and have conclusions that are modified from those specified in this Report.

The 2012 SAGR Survey provided the Academy with an opportunity to baseline its Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program (SAPR) program. The 2014 preliminary results now being reported will provide Academy leadership with its first data points in assessing the progress of the program. The Academy’s SAPR program began in earnest with the hiring of the first Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator (SARC) in April 2012, but because the majority of Midshipmen took that year’s SAGR Survey the same April, the new program had little or no influence on Midshipmen responses. As a result, the 2012 SAGR results can be considered a true baseline. The 2014 SAGR Survey offers a first look at Midshipmen perceptions, even if based solely on partial data after two years of exposure to the SAPR program.

The preliminary 2014 SAGR Survey presents results for a Midshipman population of 825 based on 452 respondents to the Survey. Non-U.S. citizens and visiting students were not eligible to take the Survey.

The SAGR Survey is a product developed specifically for Federal service academy students and cannot be administered to Academy faculty or staff. No survey of the faculty or staff was conducted in 2012; the Academy developed and administered its own Faculty and Staff Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault Survey in 2014, the first such survey given since 2010. There were no reported sexual assaults from Academy faculty or staff, but three of them revealed that they had been victims of sexual harassment. One faculty or staff member said that he or she reported the sexual harassment to the Equal Employment Opportunity office, but the office has no record of such a report being made.

The 2014 SAGR Survey was given to Midshipmen in three separate sittings⁵ – in April, August and November 2014 – to members of the Classes of 2014 through 2017.⁶ A total of 663

Midshipmen sat for the April Survey. An additional session was held in August 2014 to survey 125 members of the Class of 2015 who had returned from sea early. DMDC conducted the August session in an effort to collect and analyze as much data as possible to assist the Academy in providing the fullest possible snapshot by the Congressionally-mandated January 12, 2015 deadline date for the Report. The Academy is waiting for DMDC to incorporate data from the November Survey session into its analysis – a process that usually takes six months after the last session is completed. The Academy will provide an amendment to this Report once it receives a final data analysis from DMDC, likely in the summer of 2015.

The Survey results show that a weighted estimated of 19 (plus or minus 5) female Midshipmen and 16 (plus or minus 9) male Midshipmen were sexually assaulted (subject to behaviors ranging from unwanted touching to forced sexual acts). Of these, an estimated 8 women (plus or minus 4) reported that they experienced unwanted sexual contact while on Sea Year training. Of the 19 women (plus or minus 5) who were assaulted, 12 percent said that they reported the situation to an Academy official. This approximates the number of actual reports received by the Academy's acting SARC. Of the 16 men (plus or minus 9) who were assaulted, virtually none (a statistically insignificant number) said that they reported the assault. Nor did the Academy receive any actual reports from men who had been sexually assaulted.

An estimated 62 percent of women reported that they had been sexually harassed compared to 57 percent in the 2012 Survey. An estimated 12 percent of men reported that they had been sexually harassed compared to 8 percent in the 2012 Survey. The survey's definition of sexual harassment includes acts of crude and/or offensive behavior, unwanted sexual attention and sexual coercion. The Survey also asked if the Midshipman considered any of the selected behaviors to be sexual harassment.

In a distinct increase from the 2012 survey, the SAGR Survey showed that an estimated 78 percent of female Midshipmen believe that senior leadership (defined as the Superintendent, Deputy Superintendent, Academic Dean, Commandant, and Vice/Deputy Commandant) would make honest and reasonable attempts to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault. In the 2012 Survey, 67 percent of female Midshipmen reported that they believed that senior leadership had created a climate in which "to a large extent" sexual harassment and sexual assault were not tolerated. The 2014 Survey results also showed that, compared to the 2012 Survey, higher percentages of female Midshipmen believed that Midshipmen leaders, uniformed academic faculty, civilian academic faculty and athletic staff would make honest and reasonable efforts to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault. These results show that faith in senior leadership to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault continues to build, but there is much more work yet to be done.

The Academy's Plan of Action has been updated and reflects ongoing areas of concern as well as new items identified as a result of the SAGR Survey. Based on the preliminary survey results, we have identified the following seven areas as requiring attention:

- Working toward a "no tolerance and full reporting" climate;

- Working with industry to continue to address the climate aboard commercial vessels;
- Improving intervention and prevention training among faculty, staff and senior leadership;
- Intensifying awareness, prevention, and bystander training among midshipmen;
- Improving the variety and quantity of after-class activities to reduce the draw of alcohol-fueled entertainments;
- Developing self-assessment tools; and
- Increasing gender diversity in Academy employees and the Regiment of Midshipmen.

Because the Academy will receive a more comprehensive and final product from DMDC in the near future, the amendment to this Report may contain updated figures and a revised list of areas requiring attention.

Legislative Requirement

This report is produced in compliance with the Duncan Hunter National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2009 (P.L. 110-417), title XXXV – Maritime Administration, section 3507 (Act) (Appendix B). The Act requires an annual assessment at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA or Academy) to determine the effectiveness of its policies, training and procedures with respect to sexual harassment and sexual assault involving its personnel. In odd-numbered Academic Years (e.g., 2011-2012 Academic Year), the annual assessment consists of the Academy's self-assessment and an anonymous survey of midshipmen. In even-numbered years (e.g., 2010-2011 Academic Year), the Academy performs its annual assessment and reports changes to policies, training and outreach material. This assessment includes the results of a survey, which is the Academy's third survey since implementation of the Duncan Hunter Act's requirements.

2013-2014 Academic Year Survey Development and Methodology

The U.S. Military Academy, U.S. Naval Academy and U.S. Air Force Academy began in 2004 to follow a sexual harassment and sexual assault program assessment cycle that consisted of alternating surveys and focus groups.⁷ The first assessment in the series was conducted by the Department of Defense Inspector General. Responsibility for subsequent assessments was transferred to DMDC, which conducted surveys in 2005, 2006, 2008, 2010, and 2012 and focus groups in 2007, 2009, 2011, and 2013. U.S. Merchant Marine Academy officials requested to be included in the service academy assessment program, beginning in 2012, in order to make use of a readily available survey for a comparable cohort and to take advantage of the services of professional statisticians in analyzing survey results.

The DMDC designed the SAGR Survey to track sexual assault and sexual harassment issues at the service academies. The results provide information on the annual prevalence rates of sexual assault, sexual harassment and sexist behavior; a discussion of students' perceptions of Academy climate with respect to sexual assault and sexual harassment; the availability and effectiveness of sexual assault and sexual harassment training; and the students' perceptions of program effectiveness in reducing or preventing sexual assault and sexual harassment. The DMDC will tailor survey specifics to aspects unique to each service academy; for the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, this has meant adding questions to address the Midshipman Sea Year experience.

The DMDC administered the SAGR Survey in April, August, and November 2014 to the Academy's Midshipmen in the Classes of 2014 through 2017. The Academic student population at the Academy at the time of the April and August administrations was 825 (124 female and 701 male Midshipmen). Even though the Survey was completed by only a portion of the total onboard population, the total Midshipman population number is important because data from respondents is weighted by analysts so that the results are reflective of the entire population.⁸ Three administrations of the Survey were necessary because approximately half of the sophomore and junior classes were away from campus on Sea Year training during the first administration in April. The second session was held in August to capture responses from Midshipmen who had returned to campus in late July after completing their Sea Year training. The third session was held in November to capture responses from Midshipmen who departed for sea duty in March and did not return until mid-November.

⁷ As codified in Title 10 of the U.S., as amended by Section 532 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007.

⁸ The amended report will describe the methodologies used for weighting and the margin of error for each estimate.

The SAGR Survey also was administered at the Nation's four military service academies. The same survey and analytical procedures were used at all academies producing comparable results with one caution – the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy results include a longer timeframe as a reference for some of the questions (June 2013 to November 2014 as opposed to June 2013 to May 2014) for those Midshipmen who were surveyed in November. Prevalence rates might be slightly higher due to the longer timeframe (34 percent of Midshipmen completed the survey in November).

The ability to calculate annual prevalence rates is a distinguishing feature of this Survey. The preliminary results include rates of unwanted sexual contact and unwanted gender-related behaviors experienced during the Academic Year 2013-2014 (defined in the questions as June 2013 through the date of the survey administration in April, August and November 2014). Future administrations of the Survey will allow trend comparisons of rates across survey years.

Respondents were provided with the following definitions of sexual harassment and sexual assault:

“Sexist Behavior” is defined as verbal or nonverbal behaviors that convey insulting, offensive, or condescending attitudes based on the gender of the student.

“Sexual Harassment” is defined as experiences of crude/offensive behavior (e.g., repeatedly told sexual stories or jokes that are offensive), unwanted sexual attention (e.g., unwanted attempts to establish a romantic sexual relationship despite efforts to discourage it) or sexual coercion (e.g., treated badly for refusing to have sex).

“Unwanted Sexual Contact (Sexual Assault)” is defined as intentional sexual contact that was against a person's will or which occurred when the person did not or could not consent, and includes completed or attempted sexual intercourse, sodomy (oral or anal sex), penetration by an object, and the unwanted touching of genitalia and other sexually-related areas of the body.

Survey Administration

Data was collected in April, August, and November 2014 from Academy Midshipmen in Classes 2014 through 2017. A team from DMDC administered the anonymous paper-and-pen survey in group sessions. Separate sessions were held for female and male students. After checking in, each student was handed a survey, an envelope, a pen, and an Academy-specific information sheet. The information sheet included details on where students could obtain help if they became upset or distressed while taking the survey or afterwards. Students were briefed on the purpose of the survey and the importance of participation, yet completion of the survey itself was voluntary. Students could leave the session at the completion of the mandatory briefing if they did not wish to take the survey. Students returned completed or blank surveys (depending on whether they chose to participate) in sealed envelopes to the survey staff as they exited the session.

Midshipmen Response Rates

The total student population at the Academy is 934. The total Survey sample as of April and August 2014 consisted of a census of 825 students based on student rosters provided by the Academy. The number 825 was achieved after excluding students who could not participate for various reasons (e.g., left the Academy, were foreign nationals, or were exchange students from another Academy). Of those 825 students, 37 did not complete the Survey because they were sick or on leave or otherwise unable to be present. Of the remaining students, 133 chose not to complete any of the survey, and 203 answered some questions but did not answer enough questions to provide usable results.⁹ That meant that usable surveys were completed by 452 students.¹⁰ Table 1 details the demographics of the 452 Midshipmen respondents.¹¹ Overall the Survey had a 55 percent response rate, with 51 percent of male Midshipmen participating and 77 percent of female Midshipmen participating.

We are unable to compare 2014 response rates with 2012 because we do not yet have the final Survey results. However, with only two of three sessions analyzed the 2014 Survey response rate of 55 percent already exceeds the total 2012 response rate of 51 percent (482 responses out of a Midshipman population of 946). Further comparisons of response rate data will be provided in the amendment to this Report.

Table 1. Midshipmen Response Rates By Gender (April and August only)

| Gender/Class | Midshipmen Population | Number of Responses | Response Rate (%) |
|---------------|-----------------------|---------------------|-------------------|
| Male | 701 | 356 | 51 |
| Female | 124 | 96 | 77 |
| Total | 825 | 452 | 55 |

Since this Report considers only responses received from the sessions in April and August 2014, the overall response rate is low. The low response rate, and particularly the fact that the response rate varies greatly from one group of students to another (e.g., only 51 percent for males but 77 percent for females) inevitably raises the question of whether the validity of the results is compromised by non-response bias.

Non-response bias is the possibility that the results of the Survey are incorrect because some categories of students had a much lower response rate than others. If the categories of students who had higher response rates experienced a different rate of sexual harassment or sexual assault from the categories of students that had lower response rates, then the results of the Survey would be biased.

¹⁰ 112 Midshipmen took the Survey in November 2014. The final amendment will contain the results from 564 Midshipmen out of 934 total Midshipmen for a response rate of 58%.

¹¹ The amendment to the report will also include a table listing the Midshipmen population and response rate by class year as well.

Typically DMDC weighs the different categories of students in projecting estimates for the overall population (with weights inversely related to their response rates) to correct for non-response bias. While we have not conducted a thorough analysis of non-response bias for this survey, DMDC has in the past performed such an analysis for the similar surveys that it has conducted for active duty military personnel.¹² In its 2012 study, DMDC concluded that the level of non-response bias appeared to be modest, and that the amount of non-response bias seemed more likely to understate the rate of unwanted sexual contact (USC) than to overstate it. It detected some evidence that categories of respondents that were more likely to experience USC were less likely to complete subsequent surveys, thus understating the prevalence of USC, but described this effect as “minimal.” The Amendment to this Report will fully address this issue once the DMDC has completed their analysis of the survey responses.

Midshipmen Perceptions

Training

As reflected in Table 2, the Survey results show little variation between male and female Midshipman in their understanding of how to report sexual harassment, how to report sexual assault, and in how training helped a Midshipman to understand the investigative process associated with reporting sexual assault. However, both female and male Midshipmen were less familiar with the dynamics of the investigatory process than they were with the reporting process.

This question changed significantly from the 2012 SAGR Survey. DMDC warns that because of this, comparison to the 2012 SAGR Survey should be made cautiously. The 2012 Survey asked whether Midshipmen understood the difference between sexual harassment and sexual assault (mostly, with 94 percent of men and 95 percent of women saying they understood) and the difference between restricted and unrestricted reporting¹³ (less so, with 62 percent of men and 71 percent of women saying they understood). The 2014 SAGR Survey deleted these questions and replaced them with a new one, asking instead if Midshipmen understood the sexual assault investigative process. While it would have been worthwhile to trend the sexual harassment versus sexual assault and restricted versus unrestricted survey data from 2012 to 2014, it is still noteworthy that understanding of the investigatory process lags understanding of the reporting process. This topic will be addressed more thoroughly in future Midshipman training.

An estimated 82 percent of males and 87 percent of females indicated via the 2014 SAGR Survey that they understood how to report sexual harassment. This is in contrast to the 90 percent of males and 81 percent of females who indicated in the 2012 Survey that they understood how to report sexual harassment. An estimated 82 percent of males and 86 percent of females indicated via the 2014 SAGR Survey that they understood how to report sexual assault. This is in contrast to the 91 percent of males and 83 percent of females who indicated in the 2012 Survey that understood how to report sexual assault. These results indicate that female Midshipmen are achieving a better understanding of how to report sexual harassment and sexual assault, but that male Midshipmen appear to be losing ground in understanding the reporting process.

|-------------------|--------------------------|-----------------------|--|
| | How to Report Harassment | How to Report Assault | How Investigative Process Associated with Reporting Sexual Assault Works |
| Male | 82 | 82 | 77 |
| Female | 87 | 86 | 79 |
| Total | 83 (plus or minus 4) | 83 (plus or minus 4) | 77 (plus or minus 4) |

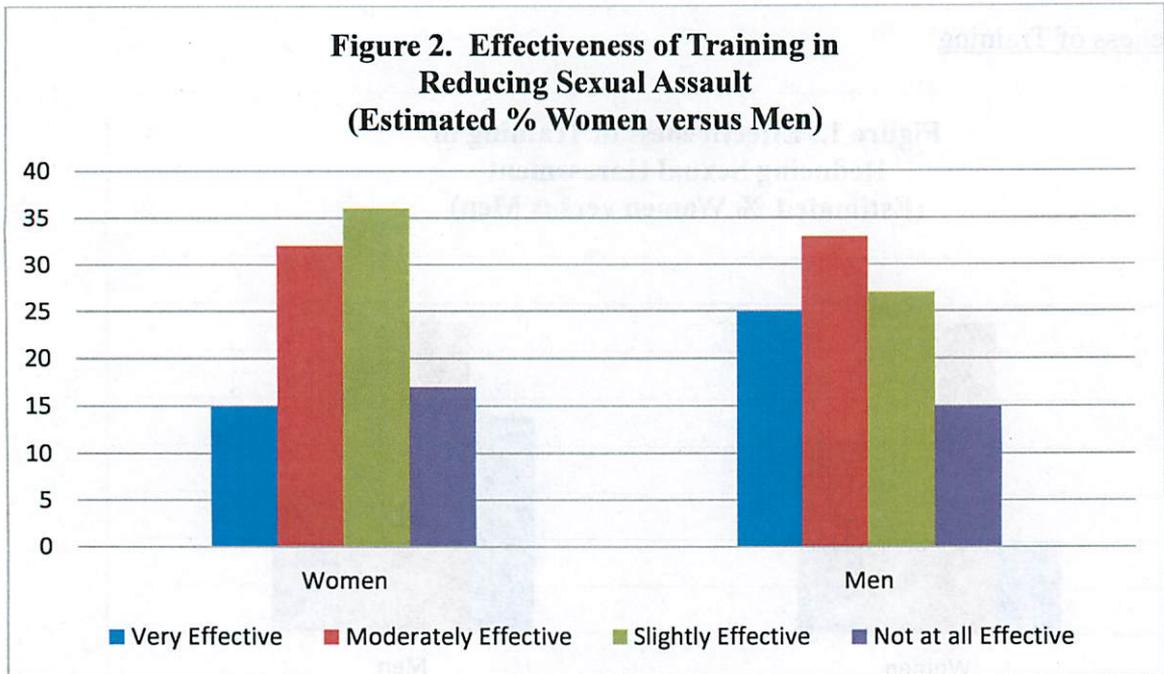

Throughout the 2013-2014 Academic Year, the Academy continued to execute a comprehensive training plan that featured professional speakers, awareness campaigns and online training sessions. For the first time, the SARC held small group discussion sessions of 20-30 upperclassmen, which were intended to be more effective than the previous large lecture sessions in which students were far less participatory. We know from survey results that the majority of Midshipmen are attending training sessions, but we must continue to tailor content to address deficient areas of understanding.

Effectiveness of Training

When asked to evaluate the Academy’s Midshipmen training program in terms of its effectiveness in reducing sexual harassment, an estimated 43 percent of women and 56 percent of men felt that it was very effective or moderately effective (Figure 1). This compares unfavorably with the 57 percent of women who thought it was only slightly effective or not at all effective. Training was perceived somewhat better by men, in that only 44 percent thought the training was only slightly effective or not at all effective. These results show that while Academic Year 2013-2014 training was meaningful to a majority of male Midshipmen, it still failed to meet the expectations of female Midshipmen that the delivery and content of the training would actually reduce sexual harassment.

When asked to evaluate the Academy’s training program in terms of its effectiveness in reducing sexual assault, an estimated 47 percent of women and 58 percent of men felt that it was very effective or moderately effective (Figure 2). These results show that training conducted in Academic Year 2013-2014 failed to meet the expectations of female Midshipmen that the delivery and content of the training would actually reduce sexual assault.

There are several conclusions to be drawn from these results. The overall quality of training must be improved so that Midshipmen understand and retain all pertinent definitions, policies and reporting procedures. In addition, the training must address campus climate issues and foster within each Midshipman an appreciation for human dignity and respect for others. The Midshipmen must learn to recognize situations with potential for sexual assault and practice techniques of bystander intervention to diffuse the situation and reduce the risk of a sexual assault. The Academy must also continue to be open to the feedback of female Midshipmen regarding the quality of the training.

Based on feedback from previous surveys, the Academy increased the frequency of its training in the 2013-2014 Academic Year. In fact, the 2014 SAGR Survey reported that 99 percent of women and 96 percent of men had received sexual harassment and sexual assault training compared to the 2012 SAGR Survey, in which only 89 percent of men and women reported receiving sexual harassment training and 89 percent of women and 88 percent of men reported receiving sexual assault training. The Academy has tried to accommodate different learning methods by providing training in different formats, including lectures, small group discussion sessions and online sessions. Entry training for Fourth Class Midshipmen (freshmen) was held in nine different scenario driven sessions with the Superintendent or Deputy Superintendent attending every session. The former SARC initiated meetings for the first time with women from the senior class to solicit their ideas and comments for improving their training. The new SARC is institutionalizing this program.

Going forward, the Academy will continue to provide a sexual harassment and sexual assault training curriculum that emphasizes prevention and response. In addition, the Academy will use training to try to bring about a broad transformation in the attitudes and sexual bias that currently exist on campus. This will require a change in the core thinking of Midshipmen so that they see each other as a gender-neutral team working toward a common cause, where each person is a valued member of the community and worthy of being protected. In parallel, the Academy is working to evaluate and improve its leadership development and training, and we expect that the process of creating leaders will align well with the theme of caring for and protecting others. A new SARC was hired and began working in November 2014 and we expect that she will bring a fresh perspective to training to help the Academy to answer the challenge of eliminating the sexism and sexist thinking that are the root cause of sexual harassment and assault.

Confidence in Reporting/Outcomes of Reporting

The 2014 SAGR Survey revealed that Fourth Class Midshipmen of both genders have more confidence in the Academy for reporting sexual assault than do male and female Midshipmen generally (Table 3). The entire female cohort, however, expressed substantially less confidence than did the men that the system would protect their privacy, ensure their safety, and treat them with dignity and respect. The 2014 SAGR Survey revised the wording of the “trust” questions to ask if “Midshipmen would be likely to trust the Academy,” whereas the 2012 SAGR Survey asked if “Midshipmen would be likely to trust the system.” Although DMDC warns that, because of this, comparison to the 2012 SAGR Survey should be made cautiously, they nevertheless conclude that in 2014, male and female Midshipmen are generally more likely to trust the Academy to protect their privacy, ensure their safety, and treat them with dignity and respect than they were in 2012.

The Academy has put many initiatives in place to increase confidence in the system. The reporting system produced four formal sexual assault reports by Midshipmen that otherwise might not have been made had they not had some level of trust in the system. The Academy has written and implemented Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) - Investigating an Unrestricted Report of Sexual Assault, Processing a Restricted Report of Sexual Assault, and Maintenance of Restricted and Unrestricted Reports, and posted these reports in a shared drive on the Academy network so that they can be accessed by anyone in the campus community. Leadership has provided visible support to the Students Against Sexual Assault (SASA) Club and has challenged the club to plan a rigorous program for the April 2015 Sexual Assault Awareness Month. In addition, the Academy activated its barracks access control system in May 2014, restricting building entry to only those who have authorization.

The Academy plans further initiatives that will increase Midshipman confidence in reporting sexual harassment and sexual assault incidents. These will continue to build upon a plan to have investigators outside of the Commandant's Department conduct inquiries into sexual assaults. The Academy will consider expanding the number of Sexual Assault Victim Advocates to include trusted faculty members. Additional campus security upgrades are contemplated throughout Fiscal Years 2015 and 2016, including the establishment of a Public Safety Local Area Network, increased video surveillance, installation of additional callboxes, and implementation of a campus entry point screening system. We also look forward to the ideas and input of the newly hired SARC in helping us to build Midshipmen confidence and trust in the Academy's ability to process reports of sexual assault.

Person to Whom Midshipmen Would be Willing to Report Assault

The 2012 SAGR Survey asked Midshipmen that if they experienced a sexual assault, would they be likely to discuss the incident with the SARC, a victim advocate, a peer advocate, or a friend. In the 2014 SAGR Survey, this question was changed to ask more details about the type of report made. The question provided five reporting type response options for a Midshipman who has experienced sexual assault – “restricted,” “unrestricted,” “restricted that was converted to unrestricted,” “did not make a report,” or “don't recall what type of report made.” The 2014 SAGR Survey results reveal that for both men and women, the number of responses to the question were so small as to be statistically not reportable.

DMDC notes that additional insights into the topic of Midshipman confidantes will be provided based on comment analysis to the question, “to whom did you report this situation [of sexual assault]?” However, comment analysis was not included in the preliminary report provided to the Academy. Comment analysis on this topic will be provided in the amendment to this Report.

Consequences of Reporting or Bringing Charges of Assault

The results of the “consequences of reporting or bringing charges of assault” were not included in DMDC's preliminary report. The results of this question will be provided in the amendment to this Report.

Since mid-2012, the Academy has been proactively training Midshipmen with a more robust program about sexual assault prevention and response, emphasizing the importance of reporting even in the face of challenging consequences. During each session, Midshipmen are asked to consider how sexual assault affects victims. The training has also stressed the importance of reporting sexual assault, since reporting enables the Academy to ensure that Midshipmen are receiving necessary support services and maintain an accounting for these incidents. Midshipmen are informed that reporting sexual assault allows the Academy to prosecute the offender so that his or her crimes cannot be repeated.

Despite these training sessions and the SARC’s ongoing encouragement that they report sexual harassment and sexual assault, it continues to be a challenge to alleviate the fears of Midshipmen that they will be stigmatized by members of the Regiment or punished for a separate offense connected with the assault, such as under-age alcohol consumption. The Academy will continue with its training regimen, but will also seek a better understanding of how to actively break down the cultural stigma of sexual assault.

Culture

It is crucial to establish an institutional culture in which sexual harassment and sexual assault are not tolerated, so that both men and women can live and learn in a positive and professional environment that is above all safe. At the Academy, three separate cohorts were identified as having particular influence over the Regiment of Midshipmen: members of senior leadership, academic faculty, and Regimental staff. Members of senior leadership set the overall tone for the Academy while the academic faculty sets the tone within the classroom. The Regimental staff is responsible for day-to-day oversight of the Midshipmen and sets the tone within barracks living spaces. The SAGR Survey asked Midshipmen whether they believed that these three cohorts make honest and reasonable efforts to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault. Their answers speak to the effectiveness of the Academy effort to create a climate where sexual harassment, sexual assault, and sexist behavior will not be tolerated.

| | Senior Leadership | | | Civilian Faculty | | | Regimental Staff | | |

The Survey results (Table 4) showed that three quarters or more of all Midshipmen respondents believe that senior leadership, faculty and Regimental staff are making an honest and reasonable effort to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault. This is a large increase from 2012, especially with female Fourth Class Midshipmen; in 2012 only 46 percent of female Fourth Class Midshipmen indicated that they believed that civilian faculty would make an honest and reasonable effort to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault compared to 69 percent in 2014. As in 2012, senior leadership received the highest vote of confidence in 2014, while confidence in civilian faculty members was again the lowest. Compared to males, the female cohort was less confident overall than males that leadership, civilian faculty, and Regimental staff would make honest and reasonable efforts to stop sexual harassment and sexual assault. Clearly, the Academy must concentrate on convincing of female Midshipmen that the leadership team is committed to creating a culture of non-tolerance for sexual harassment and sexual assault.

Privacy of Reporting

The results of the “privacy of reporting” were not included in DMDC’s preliminary report. The results of this question will be provided in the amendment to this Report.

Incidents of Midshipman Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault

Incidents of Sexual Assault

In the SAGR Survey, each Midshipman was asked whether, since June 2013, he or she had “experienced any of the following intentional sexual contacts that were against your will or which occurred when you did not or could not consent in which someone: 1) sexually touched you, 2) attempted to make you have sexual intercourse, but was not successful, 3) made you have sexual intercourse, 4) attempted to make you perform or receive oral sex, anal sex, or penetration by a finger or object, but was not successful, or 5) made you perform or receive oral sex, anal sex, or penetration by a finger or object.”

In total, a weighted estimate of 19 women (plus or minus 5) and 16 men (plus or minus 9) (Table 5) responded that they had experienced at least one incident of sexual assault during that period. An estimated three women responded that they had reported the assault through the Academy’s formal reporting procedures. This total approximates the number of formal reports received by the Academy. Since June 2013, the Academy has received one restricted and three unrestricted reports of sexual assault (Table 6).

Sources of Sexual Assault

As Table 6 indicates, three of four officially reported cases of sexual assaults on female Midshipmen were perpetrated by other Midshipmen. These figures corroborate with the results of the 2012 SAGR Survey, which showed that the estimated majority of incidents (13 of 17) were perpetrated by other Midshipmen. One officially reported incident of sexual assault against a female Midshipman was perpetrated by a ship’s crew member, which corroborates previous survey analysis that some portion of Academy women are experiencing sexual assault during their Sea Year deployment (the 2012 SAGR Survey estimated that 10 women were sexually assaulted during Sea Year).

Note: See footnote 13 on page 12 for a description of the difference between restricted and unrestricted reporting

The data shown in Table 6 and from the last SAGR Survey appear to match national statistics showing that approximately two-thirds of rapes were committed by someone known to the victim.¹⁵ A more comprehensive analysis of sources of sexual assault (Table 7) will be reported in the amendment to this Report once the Academy has obtained a complete 2014 SAGR Survey analysis from DMDC.

Academy training during the 2013-2014 Academic Program Year has focused on teaching Midshipmen what constitutes sexual assault and what students should do if they find themselves in situations that may lead to sexual assault. The SARC provides the bulk of in-house training, but professional speakers have been used to provide Midshipmen with different perspectives and approaches to preventing sexual assault and sexual harassment. Instructors have sought to teach Midshipmen how to recognize appropriate and inappropriate behaviors, how to handle awkward or difficult situations, how to protect themselves in compromising or dangerous situations, and how to intervene if they witness other students in these situations. The Academy has implemented online sexual assault prevention and alcohol prevention training; these programs were required of selected class years to supplement normally scheduled training.

The Academy has also provided targeted training on sexual assault and sexual harassment to all Midshipmen preparing to embark on Sea Year. A special program for female Midshipmen features a female Academy graduate who returns to the school to brief deploying women on what to expect in their experiences at sea. In addition, the Academy's Policy on Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (Attachment 1) requires the Director of the Department of Shipboard Training and Professional Development to solicit shipping companies for their policies on sexual harassment and sexual assault in order to provide them to Midshipmen for situational awareness. Of the shipping companies that embark Midshipmen on their ships for Sea Year training, 39 out of 40 have provided their policies to the Academy, or make them publicly available. The Academy is working with to secure the policies of the remaining company before any more Midshipmen are assigned on board.

It is clear, however, that if a substantial portion of sexual assaults are being perpetrated by Midshipmen on other Midshipmen, then the Academy's prevention strategy must include not only basic policy and reporting options training, but must also address and resolve the environmental root causes of sexual assault. The Academy has put together a framework document outlining four SAPR strategic goals: climate, prevention, response and accountability. To get at the root cause of sexual harassment and sexual assault, the Academy must create a climate of respect, trust, and adherence to our core values, and a culture that is intolerant of sexual harassment and sexual assault, those who commit it, and anyone who stands idly by while it occurs. Leaders must promote dialogue that encourages awareness and intervention and removes any barriers to reporting.

Going forward, the Academy must do more to assess the effectiveness of training and the extent to which efforts to change the campus climate make it less sexist and harassing. The Midshipmen themselves must be engaged in order to determine what they think can be done to reduce sexual harassment and sexual assault within their own ranks. Senior leadership has challenged a core group of Midshipmen Human Relations Officers/Sexual Assault Victim Advocates to develop and carry out a peer-led training program and to come up with ways that they can combat sexual harassment and sexual assault from within the Regiment.

Role of Alcohol or Drugs in Sexual Assaults

In three of the four official reports of sexual assault received by the Academy (Table 7), either one or both individuals involved in the incident had been drinking. A more comprehensive analysis of the role of alcohol or drugs in sexual assault will be reported in the addendum to this Report once the Academy has obtained a complete 2014 SAGR Survey analysis from DMDC.

Use of Formal Reporting Procedures

The Academy received four official Midshipmen reports of sexual assault in the 2013-2014 Academic Program Year, yet the preliminary 2014 SAGR Survey results indicate there were many more that were sexually assaulted. This means that a majority of the Midshipmen who were assaulted chose not to report it to authorities. In the 2012 SAGR Survey, 92 percent of the females who were sexually assaulted said that they did not report the assault because they did not want to be the subject of gossip and an equal percentage feared that their reputation and standing would be damaged. It remains to be determined what the 2014 SAGR Survey results will show. A more comprehensive analysis of formal reporting procedures will be provided in the amendment to this Report once the Academy has obtained a complete 2014 SAGR Survey analysis from DMDC.

Table 8 shows that an estimated 62 percent of females and 12 percent of males reported experiencing sexual harassment. This reflects a drop compared to the 2012 Survey, particularly in males, when 17 percent reported that they had been sexually harassed. We will not speculate on the reason for the significant drop reported in male sexual harassment until we have received a complete set of data from DMDC. A more comprehensive analysis of incidents of sexual harassment will be provided in the amendment to this Report once the Academy has obtained a complete 2014 SAGR Survey analysis from DMDC.

Staff Response Rates

The Academy also self-administered a survey of its own Faculty and Staff in 2014, the first since 2010. Tables 10 and 11 detail the demographics of the 118 faculty and staff respondents. There was about equal participation between faculty and staff in the survey. Although the tables reflect an overall response rate of 41 percent, it should be noted that not every faculty or staff member answered every question. When fewer than 118 faculty or staff members responded to a particular question, the associated table is annotated to indicate the number of members who did respond.

Staff Perceptions

Training

Eighty-seven percent of the respondents reported that they had received Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) training on sexual harassment; 85 percent reported that they had received EEO training on sexual assault.

Seventeen percent of faculty and staff reported that training they had received was very effective in reducing sexual harassment, while 15 percent reported that training was very effective in reducing sexual assault. For the majority of respondents, training was only moderately effective (Figure 3)

Staff and faculty members who answered that sexual harassment and sexual assault training were “not at all” effective were asked to comment on why they thought the training was ineffective. A majority of respondents said that they had no data or metrics by which to measure the effectiveness of training. Several individuals stated that the training focused on reporting sexual harassment and not on preventing it. Others said that they had learned nothing that they did not know already. Given this feedback, the SARC will tailor future training sessions to include a brief of SAGR as well as Faculty and Staff Survey results, a scenario illustrating bystander intervention techniques, and a dialogue that engages the audience so that active learning occurs.

With respect to the Academy’s sexual harassment and sexual assault policies and procedures, 80 percent or more reported that to a “very large extent” or “large extent” they understood the difference between sexual harassment and sexual assault, knew the difference between restricted and unrestricted reporting, and they understood the Academy’s sexual harassment and sexual assault policies (Table 12).

Outcomes of Reporting

When faculty and staff were asked about likely consequences of reporting or bringing charges of sexual harassment¹⁶ against an Academy employee, more than 60 percent thought it was “very likely” or “likely” that there would be a fair investigation and that the harassment would stop (Table 13). This is an improvement compared to the 2010 Faculty and Staff Survey¹⁷, when fewer than 40 percent of the respondents thought it “very likely” or “likely” percent that there would be a fair investigation and that the harassment would stop. In 2014, 48 percent of faculty and staff reported they thought that the harasser would be punished, compared to 2010, when fewer than 40 percent of respondents thought the harasser would be punished. This indicates that faculty and staff confidence in the outcomes of reporting is trending in the right direction.

¹⁶ The faculty and staff survey did not include a question about the consequences of reporting or bringing a charge of sexual assault against an Academy employee.

¹⁷ The Faculty and Staff survey conducted in 2010 asked similar questions and was administered similarly to the 2014 Faculty and Staff Survey. As such, we can make comparisons between the results of each.

Organizational Climate

More than 60 percent of faculty and staff believe that their supervisors and senior leadership are creating a climate, which to a “very large extent” or “large extent,” does not tolerate sexual harassment or sexual assault (Table 14). Faculty and staff members believed that their supervisors would be more likely than senior leadership to create a climate in which workers were encouraged to report sexual harassment and sexual assault. Faculty and staff members thought that supervisors and senior leadership were generally equal in providing adequate information to employees about policies, procedures and the consequences of committing sexual harassment and sexual assault.

Persons to Whom Faculty and Staff Would be Willing to Report Sexual Harassment or Assault

Faculty and staff members were asked to whom they would be willing to report a personal experience of sexual harassment or sexual assault. Respondents could make multiple selections. The majority (64 percent) of respondents indicated that they would be willing to report the incident to the SARC (Table 15). Other trusted agents included civilian law enforcement (62 percent), a supervisor (59 percent), and Academy security (51 percent). In 2010, when the Faculty and Staff Survey was last administered, the Academy did not have a SARC so the most trusted agents were a supervisor (70 percent), civilian law enforcement (60 percent), and a spouse or boyfriend/girlfriend (57 percent).

Assistance to Midshipmen

We were interested in determining whether members of the faculty or staff would know how to assist a Midshipman who had confided in them an instance of sexual harassment or sexual assault.

Faculty members interact with Midshipmen on a frequent basis and develop relationships such that a Midshipman might report an incident of sexual harassment or sexual assault to a trusted faculty member. Some staff members work with Midshipmen on a closer basis than others, and might develop similar trusted relationships. Per the faculty and staff survey, 18 percent of faculty and staff reported that a Midshipman had confided in them an incident of sexual assault.

While Table 16 is reassuring in that the majority of faculty and staff appear knowledgeable and able to help a Midshipman, more work is needed. Nearly 30 percent of faculty and staff do not understand how to provide advice and guidance to Midshipman victims of sexual assault and this shortcoming must be remedied. In addition, it appears that faculty and staff are concerned about whether Midshipmen are receiving adequate sexual harassment and sexual assault training, particularly in the area of bystander intervention.

Incidents of Staff Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault

Three faculty or staff members reported in the survey that they had experienced at least one incident of sexual harassment during the 2013-2014 Academic Program Year. There were no reports of sexual assault. All three incidents of harassment were categorized as unwanted whistles, sexual remarks, looks or gestures. Two faculty or staff members reported that the sexual harassment was perpetrated by a staff member and one faculty or staff member reported that the harasser was an individual not related to the Academy. None of the victims reported being under the influence of alcohol or drugs, but at least one of the three perpetrators had been drinking alcohol when the harassment occurred. One of the respondents reported the sexual harassment incident through formal EEO channels and said that the EEO procedures helped to a moderate extent. When determining to report or not report the sexual harassment incident, all three victims considered that they did not want to be the subject of gossip. Two victims said they did not think anything would be done about the sexual harassment and that Academy administration would not solve the problem. One person said that the incident was not important enough to report. Additional reasons for not reporting included, "I wanted to handle it myself," "I thought people would not believe me," "I feared some form of retaliation," "I felt shame or embarrassment," "I feared ostracism, harassment, or ridicule by peers," and "I was negatively pressured by someone in a position of authority."

CONCLUSIONS

Preliminary results indicate that there is still much work to be done to rid the Academy of these unacceptable behaviors. The Academy, the Maritime Administration, and the Department of Transportation are fully committed to providing the Midshipmen with an environment that is safe, secure, and entirely free of sexual harassment and sexual assault. As noted in the Executive Summary, this initial report does not yet incorporate all of the survey data, so these results are preliminary. The Department will release an amended report in the summer of 2015 once all of the survey data have been fully analyzed. The conclusion to the amended report will contain additional analysis based on the final results of the survey, as well as action steps the Academy intends to take.

PRIVACY ADVISORY

This survey is anonymous, does not collect or use personally identifiable information, and responses are not retrievable by personal identifier. In order to better protect your privacy, do not include information that may identify you when completing write-in responses. The purpose of this survey is to determine the extent to which sexual assault/harassment is occurring among cadets/midshipmen at the Service Academies and to evaluate the effectiveness of each Service Academy's sexual assault/harassment policies, training and procedures. Your responses will be aggregated and will provide senior Department of Defense, Department of Homeland Security, or Department of Transportation officials a benchmark to track sexual assault/harassment trends over time. These aggregated findings will also be reported to Congress and may be published by the Defense Manpower Data Center in professional journals or presented at conferences, symposia, or scientific meetings. Completing this survey is voluntary. There will be no attempt to trace responses back to the respondent. There is no penalty for not responding or skipping questions; however, maximum participation is encouraged so that the data will be complete and representative.

STATEMENT OF RISK: The data collection procedures are not expected to involve any risk or discomfort to you. The only risk to you is accidental or unintentional disclosure of any identifying data you provide. Superintendent's Instruction 2012-08, Policy on Sexual Assault Prevention and Response, dated 30 July 2012

United States Merchant Marine Academy
Kings Point, New York

30 July 2012

SUPERINTENDENT'S INSTRUCTION 2012-08

Subj: POLICY ON SEXUAL ASSAULT PREVENTION AND RESPONSE

References: a) Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (as amended); b) Maritime Administration Order 770-713-3; c) and other federal, departmental, agency, or Academy policies governing sexual assault.

1. Purpose: To establish policy, assign responsibilities, and set procedures outlining the Academy policy on sexual assault prevention and response involving midshipmen and other Academy personnel.
2. Applicability: This policy applies to all Academy personnel, including midshipmen, faculty, staff, and personnel of tenant agencies, whether federal employees, military personnel, NAFI employees or contract employees.
3. Supersedes: Superintendent's Instruction 2010-05, "Policy Against Sexual Assault."
4. Policy:
 - a) The United States Merchant Marine Academy is committed to maintaining a safe campus at which midshipmen can learn and mature in an environment free of violence, harassment, hazing, and sexual misconduct. In keeping with its mission, the Academy supports and nurtures a campus climate that allows midshipmen, faculty, and staff to perform at their highest abilities, assured of their essential safety and well-being. Each member of the Academy community is responsible for fostering mutual respect, being familiar with this policy, and refraining from conduct that violates this policy. Sexual assault will not be tolerated.
 - b) The Academy will use training, education, and awareness to minimize sexual assault, promote the sensitive handling of victims of sexual assault, offer victim assistance and counseling, hold those who commit sexual assault offenses accountable, provide confidential avenues for reporting, and reinforce a commitment to Academy values.
 - c) This policy applies –
 - i) Both on and off Academy grounds and during duty and non-duty hours.
 - ii) To working, living, and recreational environments (including both at the Academy, off the Academy grounds, and at sea).

- d) The Academy will treat all victims of sexual assault with dignity, fairness, and respect. A victim's rights include the following:
 - i) The right to be treated with fairness and with respect for his or her dignity and privacy;
 - ii) The right to receive immediate and effective medical care and attention, including long-term follow-up treatment, if eligible;
 - iii) The right to be reasonably protected from the accused offender;
 - iv) The right to be notified of court proceedings;
 - v) The right to be present at all public court proceedings related to the offense (unless the court determines otherwise);
 - vi) The right to talk with the attorney for the Government handling the case;
 - vii) The right to restitution, if appropriate;
 - viii) The right to information about the conviction, sentencing, imprisonment, and release of the offender from custody; and
 - ix) The right, if desired, to confidential or restricted reporting of the sexual assault incident.
- e) The Academy will treat every reported sexual assault incident seriously by following proper guidelines. The information and circumstances of the allegations will be disclosed on a need-to-know basis only.

5. Definition of Sexual Assault:

Sexual assault, a crime of violence, is defined as intentional touching of a sexual nature against the will (by use of force, physical threat, or abuse of authority), or without the consent of the victim. The victim of sexual assault may be male or female and the perpetrator of the sexual assault may be of the same or opposite sex. Sexual assault includes, but is not limited to the following:

- a) Unwanted kissing, groping, fondling, or other more aggressive physical acts, such as rape, nonconsensual sodomy (oral or anal sex), or attempts to commit these acts;
- b) Sexual contact with someone whom you reasonably should have known was impaired due to the use of alcohol or drugs (including prescription medications);
- c) Sexual contact with someone who is "passed out", sleeping, or otherwise incapacitated;
- d) Sexual contact with someone who is unable to say "no" and/or change their mind due to the presence of coercion or intimidation; and
- e) Sexual contact with someone who is under the age of consent in the jurisdiction in which the sexual assault occurs.

6. Procedures:

a) Victims of sexual assault are strongly encouraged to report such assaults as soon as possible, whether the assault took place on or off campus. A victim of sexual assault has the option to make either a restricted or unrestricted report.

b) Types of Reporting:

i) Restricted Reporting: Restricted reporting allows midshipmen who are sexual assault victims, on a confidential basis, to disclose the details of their assault to specifically identified individuals and receive medical treatment and counseling at a location of the victim's choice (on or off-campus), without triggering the official investigative process. Midshipmen who are sexually assaulted and desire restricted reporting under this policy should report the assault to the Academy's Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC), a Victim Advocate (VA), or an Academy Health Care Provider (HCP), each of whom must immediately forward the report to the SARC. VAs or HCPs who fail to report assaults to the SARC will be held accountable for such failure. Midshipmen may also report the assault to the Academy's chaplain. This policy on restricted reporting is in addition to the current protections afforded privileged communications with a chaplain and does not alter those protections.

Restricted reports cannot be made to anyone other than those identified in this paragraph.

Midshipmen who initially elect to make a restricted report can, at any time after their initial restricted report, decide to pursue unrestricted reporting, which will result in the initiation of criminal and administrative investigatory proceedings. Sexual Assault Forensic Exam evidence kits collected from victims on restricted reports can only be used within 12 months of their initial reporting of the sexual assault.

ii) Unrestricted Reporting: Unrestricted reporting allows midshipmen who are sexually assaulted and desire medical treatment, counseling, and an official investigation of their allegations to report their assault to the SARC, law enforcement, through the chain of command (including Company Officers and other Commandant's uniformed staff members), a VA, an Academy HCP, a midshipman Human Relations Officer, or any trusted advisor, faculty, or staff member. A report of sexual assault made to anyone other than the SARC must immediately be forwarded to the SARC, who will have primary responsibility for handling the report, including notifying the appropriate law enforcement personnel and the Academy staff responsible for the administrative investigation. Individuals who fail to report assaults to the SARC will be held accountable for such failure. Details regarding the incident will be limited to only those personnel who have a legitimate need to know. Use of the unrestricted reporting option is encouraged as it provides for immediate formal criminal and administrative investigations. It is the only option that can lead to accountability (offenders being held accountable) and prevent offenders from re-offending.

- c) Any midshipman or other personnel who has been sexually assaulted or thinks that they may have been sexually assaulted should:
 - i) Get away from the attacker immediately to a safe place.
 - ii) Report the assault as provided above.
 - iii) Preserve all evidence. Do not wash, comb, or clean any part of your body, and do not change clothes if possible.
 - iv) Protect the crime scene: close and lock the door where the crime occurred.
 - v) Seek medical care as soon as possible. Even if there are no visible physical injuries, there may be risk of becoming pregnant or acquiring sexually transmitted diseases.
 - vi) Agree to a sexual assault forensic examination to preserve evidence.
- d) Requirement to Report: Allegations of sexual assault received by any Academy Midshipman Officer, faculty member, staff member, contract employee, or other employee must be reported immediately to the SARC or to the VA on duty, who will take appropriate action pursuant to this policy. Individuals who fail to report such allegations will be held accountable for such failure.
- e) Academy Response in Cases of Imminent Danger: The Academy will ensure that a sexual assault victim's election between an unrestricted and restricted report is honored to the maximum extent possible. However, disclosure of covered communications is authorized when there is imminent threat to the health or safety of the victim or another person.
- f) Disciplinary Action for Accused in Unrestricted Reports of Sexual Assault: In addition to any criminal proceedings that may be instituted by Federal or local law enforcement authorities, the Academy may pursue an administrative investigation and disciplinary proceedings pursuant to the Midshipman Regulations. Other Academy personnel accused of sexual assault may be subject to investigation and discipline pursuant to the Maritime Administrative Order (MAO) 770-751, Disciplinary and Adverse Actions.

- g) Prohibition Against Retaliation: Loyalty to the Academy and its core values must supersede misplaced "loyalty" to someone who has violated the law and betrayed those values. Thus no individual shall be retaliated against in any way by a member of the Academy community for participation in this complaint procedure. Every effort will be made to protect members of the Academy community so that they may use or participate in this complaint procedure without fear of reprisal or retaliatory action. Threats or other forms of intimidation and retaliation against the victim, witnesses, or any other individual implementing or using the complaint procedure are violations of this policy and, thus, may be grounds for disciplinary action. Individuals who believe they have been retaliated against in violation of this policy should immediately notify the SARC. Supervisors, midshipman or commissioned officers, and other personnel in the chain of command will be held accountable for ensuring that such behavior does not occur.
 - h) Alleged Victim Misconduct: In any reported case of sexual assault, the Academy will defer adjudication of any alleged misconduct by the victim until the final disposition of the sexual assault case. The chain of command should take into account the trauma to the victim and respond appropriately to encourage reporting of sexual assault and the continued cooperation of the victim.
7. Education and training: Sexual assault prevention and response training is the most critical component to the success of the program. The goals of the program are to raise awareness and to train critical stakeholders in their part in the fight against sexual assault. The following training requirements will serve as the minimum standard:
- a) Plebe Candidates. Within the first two weeks of reporting to the Academy; midshipmen will receive basic awareness training.
 - b) All Midshipmen. Quarterly awareness training (in addition to any other required training, such as Plebe Candidates, pre-Sea Year or post-Sea Year training). Training topics will vary by quarter to actively raise the awareness level.

 - d) Midshipman Officers. Semiannual leader training to prepare them to prevent and respond effectively to incidents of sexual assault.

- e) All Faculty, Administrators, and Staff. Annual training to raise awareness, advise on available resources to victims and explain how to respond effectively to incidents of sexual assault.

- g) Victim Advocates. Annual training on victim support topics to prepare them for their critical roles.
